By Tony Gimmellie

There is no shortage of innovation coming out the doors at Magpul Industries. I have had the opportunity to talk with Drake Clark and many of his design team members over the last three years and I am always impressed by what they can come up with.

What really is amazing is that more times than not a company will make a great product that they can't produce enough of or keep on the shelf and they figure it's a home run and leave it alone to sell. Not Magpul these guys continue to improve even their top selling products and enhance and modify them even more, when it really didn't even need a modification they come up with something new to enhance it anyways.

Magpul has set the standard when it comes to aftermarket add on accessories. They have done such a great job that major manufactures are starting to use their products as standard parts on their package rifles.

The Pmag has been a hit from the word go. We at Team Blaster have been using there magazines in all our AR platforms for 3 gun and carbine schools and training for the last 3 years. I am happy to say that I am still running the same beat up old magazines and we have not had one single issue with feeding or reliability. These things just work and can take some serious abuse. They are highly recommended.

The MS2 Sling and the ASAP Sling mount was a huge hit in 2009. The MS2 sling allows a shooter to quickly attach and or remove the weapon from the sling in mere seconds. The sling is durable and easily adjusts to the individual shooter.

CTR Stocks - These collapsible stocks are a welcome addition to any M4 or SBR. They provide a great shooting platform for the shooters face. They are rugged, durable and solid. I have been running this stock on my POF .223 3-gun rifle for quite some time and I am totally happy to be using this stock over the flimsy, plastic, earlier models. Do you self the favor and try one out and I will assure you that you will be switching your stock out.

Magpul continues to grow and expand their product line as well as their line of training do yourself a favor and drop buy their site and see what you are missing out on.
